Screenwriting -- ExperienceSaving Shenandoah*

2017

- A feature-length drama screenplay
- Logline: Seventeen-year-old Laurie has grown up in New Hampshire's foster care system. She has never known a loving home, until she comes into the care of foster parent Beatrice and her young daughter Shenandoah. When Beatrice dies suddenly and it becomes clear that Shenandoah will go into the foster care system herself, Laurie takes drastic measures and goes on the run with Shenandoah to prevent the young girl from meeting the same fate as Laurie, who has become hardened from years in a broken system. But as Laurie struggles to get Shenandoah to safety – coming face to face with the demons of her past along the way – she begins to realize that saving the young girl, whom she has come to see as a sister, may come at a higher cost than she ever expected.

Between Two Worlds

2012

- A feature-length drama screenplay
- Logline: After twelve years of estrangement, a young Deaf woman with a wild streak and her philosophy professor sister are forced to move in with each other following the sudden death of their brother, but cultural differences and their turbulent history make this a transition fraught with tension.
- Top 10, Marfa Film Festival 2015
- Winner, Diversity & Inclusion Spotlight Award, Fresh Voices Screenplay Competition
- Quarterfinalist, Cynosure Screenwriting Awards (“The Cynosure Screenwriting Awards seek to expand the scope of mainstream cinema by recognizing and rewarding feature-length scripts in two distinct categories: screenplays which feature compelling female protagonists; and screenplays that showcase diversity [ethnicity, race, sexuality, disability, etc.]”)

Eight Days in ‘88

2015

- A feature-length historical drama screenplay based on a true story
- A young deaf woman raised without sign language finds herself caught between the hearing family she left behind and the culturally Deaf family she finds at college in this drama about identity, empowerment, and belonging set against the backdrop of the 1988 Deaf President Now movement at Gallaudet University, the world's only liberal arts university for the deaf and hard of hearing.
- Top 15% (out of 6,915 entries), 2016 Academy Nicholl Fellowships in Screenwriting

Juvenile Justice

2016

- A one-hour television drama pilot
- Juvenile Justice explores the personal and professional lives of a group of public defenders working in the Los Angeles juvenile court system, where they work with a heavy caseload of marginalized children caught up in a broken system. The themes of the show include redemption, wrestling with one’s past and one’s future, identity, injustice versus justice, and the question of what we owe America’s most vulnerable children.
- Top 15, The Breakk Screenwriting Contest 2018

Color of Law

2015

- A one-hour television drama pilot

- Color of Law follows FBI Civil Rights Squad, which investigates contemporary hate crimes, “color of law” abuses by public officials, and crimes against society’s most vulnerable (such as prostitutes, victims of human trafficking, individuals abused by police, etc.). The squad also investigates historical murders from the Civil Rights era in accordance with the Emmett Till Unsolved Civil Rights Crime Act of 2007. A historian and an FBI agent, both haunted by their respective pasts, team up in the Atlanta Field Office to help solve these cases, coming face to face with the FBI’s historical complicity in Civil Rights-era crimes in the process.
